

I have been involved in the provision of dental and aesthetic services for over 10 years in and around West Yorkshire. I set up The Temple Practice with a view to providing the kind of services I believe users want.

I am dedicated to finding affordable solutions to the ever-increasing demands of today's users. I believe that high-quality service should not be exclusive to only the very wealthy, but should be available to the entire cost-conscious population.

I like to keep ahead of the latest developments in products and technology and aim to provide services I am happy to use myself.

I like to keep up with the technology that keeps me looking youthful, internet technology is a different matter! Click on my picture to read my blog.

My interests include cooking, portraiture, and relaxing in the North-West Highlands of Scotland.
